DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3,12,13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Jaquette et al (PN 5,790,491).

Regarding claims 1,2,4,12,13,15,

Figure 1 illustrates an optical disk recorder that automatically calibrates the laser pulse having a microprocessor (20) for the controlling the laser based on feedback provided by detector (50), a laser control circuit (15) for controlling the laser (14) in accordance with the signals received by the microprocessor and the analog signal provided by the digital-to-analog converter DAC (23) and an optics system (11) for focusing the laser pulse on the recording disk (10). Column 6 lines 1-16, discloses the DAC providing an analog signal to the laser control circuit for establishing the pulse intensity and modulation. Column 12 lines 1-67, discloses the analog signal provided by the DAC is determined in accordance to the duration of the pulse. Thereby, the generation of a modulated laser pulse implies a pulse generator and a modulator, which will provide temporal placement of the generated pulses.

Regarding claim 3,14,

As described in column 6 lines 1-16 the DAC providing an analog signal to the laser control circuit for establishing the pulse intensity and modulation, where the modulation will provide temporal placement of the generated pulses.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5-7,8-9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jaquette et al (PN 5,790,491) in view of Sasaki et al (PN 4,831,611).

Jaquette et al is silent as to the circuit elements within the laser control circuit (15).

However, the use of comparators, capacitors and logic components to compare signals to a desired or predetermined signal is well known in the art, as illustrated in figures 3,5,8 and 9 of Sasaki et al filed in 1986, where comparators and logic elements are provided within the circuit controlling the laser pulses.
